

To get a WO publication number using the electronic version of the PCT Gazette

1. Log onto the Internet
2. Go to address: <http://pctgazette.wipo.int>
3. Enter the word "guest" as both user ID and password
4. Change the default setting for the most recent publication date to ALL (broader range of PCT Gazettes are searched).
5. Click in the QUERY box and type in the PCT number as `pct/ccyy/#####` where cc is the two-letter country code and YY is last two digits of the year. NOTE: it isn't case sensitive.
6. Click on the SEARCH button.
7. If the PCT has been published, the program will give you the WO number and title of the invention.
8. To view the information from the PCT Gazette, click on the WO number. Remember that an "A1" level publication is the international application together with the International Search Report. The entire text of the publication is available on-line two weeks after publication date.
9. To get the Search Report on line, click on the "VIEW IMAGE" button found on the full information page of the PCT Gazette which is a direct link to the EPO's ESPACENET site.
10. Click on the SR tab to view the first page of the Search Report. You have to print out the Search Report one page at a time but they're usually onto 3-4 pages in length. You'll need to set your printer to "fit image" since the page set up is for A4 paper. Click on the Next tab for each additional page.

If the PCT was published without the Search Report, the PCT Gazette will show the publication as an "A2" document so you don't need to go any further. [NOTE: if the search report has been received from the ISA/EP, the agent can be called and asked to fax a copy for the examiner]

Keep in mind that at the present time, this listing only goes back a year or two. WIPO will be expanding the database.
